

Problems that won't be fixed

- Dynamically handle email, username, and password validation on frontend
 - Currently, this is done on the backend with use of a npm package that is integrated with our DB models
 - Doing it on frontend would require us to write the validation from scratch which is not a priority for us